Spring rains caused some flooding at the Meskwaki Powwow Grounds this year.

THE MESKWAKI NATION TIMES
VOLUME 18 ISSUE 02
FROM THE MESKWAKI NATION EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Greetings Meskwaki Nation citizens, coworkers and residents of the Meskwaki Nation Settlement. I am providing the following update on Tribal Operations going into the New Year 2021.

The Meskwaki Nation experienced far too many deaths within the community and I hope this trend ends soon. I’m sure you all have the same sentiment as I do regarding 2020 – I’m glad it’s over! Now we can anticipate a much better year in 2021 and hopefully focus our energies on looking forward and planning for the future.

COVID-19 PANDEMIC:
We are very fortunate that we received the Moderna Covid-19 Vaccine in late December that the clinic started administering immediately. Although many have received the vaccinations, there remain so many more that are awaiting their turn to receive the vaccinations. As soon as the clinic receives a new shipment of the vaccine, they will coordinate with established protocols and priorities and notify the community. Please be patient as we appreciate all the hard work the clinic and its staff have been doing to help get the Settlement through this pandemic.

Reopening Plan: As you all know, we have been operating under the Reopening Plan that was implemented on June 15, 2020 and extended to December 30, 2020. At our next Tribal Council Meeting, I propose that we extend the Meskwaki Reopening Plan – with current safeguards on temperature testing, wearing masks, social distancing, and limiting face-to-face meetings and replacing them with Zoom meetings, telephone call or e-mails. I propose we extend our Reopening Plan to June 1, 2021. Everyone please continue to practice safe distancing and wear your masks.

AUGUST 10 DERECHO STORM

DISASTER:
Work is finally underway on repairs to the 271 homes that were damaged during the storm. This took a long time as previously reported because of delays with FEMA, with the insurance provider, and with securing available contractors who were all dealing with a large portion of the State of Iowa that was also affected by the storm. We all appreciate the support we received from the Meskwaki community in your patience and cooperation during this trying time. It took far too long and caused many of you discomfort and frustration, but we all worked hard to help all our tribal members and community members as much as we could. I still am very thankful that there were no injuries or deaths because of the storm. Another key item is to develop a Tribal 477 Program which will enhance our Workforce Development and Apprenticeship Programs. This new program will not only prepare individuals for their careers in life, it will also support entrepreneurship and small business development on the Settlement. There are many other programs and services that could be brought to the Settlement and we all will work together to include this in the new Strategic Plan that will serve as a road map for the Leaders and Administration to move the Meskwaki Nation into the future.

The Workforce Development staff will be reaching out to the Meskwaki community to ask for input on what you want to see as priorities as we develop our Workforce Development strategies. We want to ensure that we will be able to support all those who want to advance their career or start a small business on or near the Settlement. We want to see more Tribal members employed in the Tribal operations and enterprises or running their own businesses.

2020 ANNUAL AUDIT:
The 2020 Annual Audit is currently underway with the goal to complete this by the end of March, 2021. This will put us on schedule to complete this earlier than we have seen in many years. Thanks to our Fiscal staff and new CFO in working hard to close out 2020 and initiate the audit right away. The CFO has also started the process of providing monthly financial reports to the Tribal Council and Program Directors to ensure we all are up-to-date on the status of operations and especially on our budgets.

2015 STRATEGIC PLAN:
As previously reported, starting in early 2021, the Tribal Council will lead the way in updating the Meskwaki Nation Strategic Plan that was completed in 2015. This update will carry us into the future with new plans for growth and development for the Settlement and for an increase in services to the Tribal Members. Key to this strategy will be to position the Meskwaki Nation as a Self-Governance Tribe. This will enhance our status as a sovereign Tribal Nation and streamline how we receive Federal funds that will be spent as we determine. We will work with the BIA Regional Office to initiate steps to ultimately position the Meskwaki Nation to join the current 127 of the 574 Federally-recognized Tribal governments - who are now Self-Governance Tribes.

ELDERS CARE PROGRAM
Through all the challenging times last year, we were made aware that a number of seniors are living in less than healthy environments and are not able to maintain their homes in a clean and safe condition. Before their condition reaches a point of emergency and potentially causes them additional health and other issues, the Tribal Council has directed staff to develop a new Senior Care Program that will monitor and inventory Elders needs and identify resources to address these needs. By taking this proactive approach, it is felt that our Elders on the Settlement will continue to live in a clean, comfortable and healthy home on their Settlement. The plans are currently underway as several departments are coming together to develop this plan. If any community members have any ideas to contribute to developing this plan to ensure our Elders receive the care they need, please feel free to contact the Tribal office.

Child Support Services: Due to social distancing needs as well as additional office space needs to accommodate the Tribal Court staff, the Child Support Services staff will be moving to the Family Services Building at the South Farm. Renovations are currently underway to create more office space in the facility for the added staff.

Workforce Development: Due to expansion of services for Meskwaki, Inc. with its new acquisition of a federal contracting company, Workforce Development staff are planning to move to the house adjacent to the new Apprenticeship Building.

Youth Services: Also needing to move because of Meskwaki, Inc.’s expansion plans, the Youth Services staff are now housed in office space inside the new Apprenticeship Building.

SAC & FOX HOUSING DEVELOPMENT

The Sac & Fox Housing Authority and Housing Commission were both officially dissolved in January 2020. We have since been working on transitioning operations for the HUD-funded projects under the Tribal Operations as the newly established Sac & Fox Housing Development. The Tribal Council oversees key decisions for all activities, funding and any reporting to HUD. We recently hired Larry Lasley as the new SFHD Manager – he reports to Kent Scheid – Housing Department Director. Adri Maukemo still works as the Administrative Assistant.

Currently, the only project that is funded by HUD are the apartments adjacent to the Senior Services Program. Larry is focusing on catching up on administrative issues related to the transition and will then work on planning for the future housing development projects that will be funded by HUD.

STAFF/DEPARTMENT MOVES

Due to Covid and other expansion issues, the following departments are moving to other office spaces with renovations underway to accommodate the staff moves.

THANK YOU MESKWAKI NATION:

I want to continue to remind all Meskwaki Nation citizens to help us carry on the work at hand with the priority to protect the health and wellbeing of every citizen, employee and visitor to the Meskwaki Settlement. Let us work together to keep each other healthy and free from the COVID-19 Virus by wearing masks at all times, washing hands regularly, maintaining social distancing and limiting group activities as much as possible. The life of everyone who lives and works on the Meskwaki Settlement – especially our elders and youth - is too valuable.

Always know that I am available for any Tribal Member to contact me at any time. Aho.

TIP
Consider recording depositions or testimony to preserve evidence due to the older person mental capacity or life span.
February is often associated with Valentine’s Day, a time that focuses on love. Too many times we are pushed to believe that a person’s value comes from the affection of others.

Let us remember this month of February that a person’s value comes from within themselves, and from there that same love can be shared with others.

Let us remember the importance of self-care, and how the value of self allows others to be loved at the greatest capacity.
It has been six years now since Rita Papakee was last seen. Papakee was last seen on January 16th, 2015, as she left the Meskwaki Bingo casino, never to be heard from again. Her family believes someone in the community holds the key that could unlock the closure they have been seeking. If you have any information that could help bring her home please call or text the Meskwaki Police Department at (641) 481-0840.

BILLBOARDS

Meskwaki RISE will be putting up two billboards of Rita’s Missing flyer to bring more awareness to the surrounding areas. The billboards will be located on US 330 North (Melbourne/Phillip 66) and US 30 East (Between two Marshalltown Exits).

LANGUAGE LEARNERS UPDATE

The Meskwaki Language Preservation Program would like to acknowledge the learners who have successfully completed their respective levels of the Meskwaki Language for Adult Beginners session.

This session was abruptly halted when most of the Levels had reached the midway point of their 12-week session. Tribal Operations shutdown from March - June due to the Coronavirus pandemic. These learners persevered to continue attending classes via Zoom video communications with their instructors in August 2020. We appreciate our learner’s determination to continue to learn our Meskwaki language and their patience with us as we had to utilize technology to bring the language to you outside our classroom.

Wettitawi to the Level I learners who met with Netawi, Level III learners who met with Ketabia, and Level V learners who met with Medenea.

At this time we are planning on starting a new 12-week sessions of the Meskwaki Language for Adult Beginners classes in the Spring. We will provide more information in the next Meskwaki Nation Times. Please contact us if you are interested in signing up for the next session. You can call our office at 641-484-9288, send us a message on our Facebook page, or send us a message via Messenger.
DEAR MESKWAKI COMMUNITY,

It’s difficult to believe we’ve been living through a global pandemic for almost a whole year, but here we are still wearing protective masks and social distancing. It almost feels like we have developed a sense of normalcy about wearing masks everywhere, and that is a good thing. While we have grown more cautious, we have also seen some of our traditions shift.

This shift has been evident in how we work, how our children go to school and how we do or do not socialize. This virus dictates how we live due to the deadly nature of it’s make up.

The COVID virus doesn’t care who it infects or how many lives it impacts. COVID attacks without prejudice and will find the people that are unprepared, and the people that refuse to wear a protective mask. COVID will also find the people that believe social distancing isn’t necessary, so I am urging everyone to please be thoughtful of all your loved ones and put a mask on, because we need to pull through this together!

I can also see another way this virus has impacted our community, and this is something that has an affect on all of us. When there is a loss of life in our community, we no longer gather together at a wake to sit all night with the family. Due to safety precautions, families put out notices for our community to stay away or keep at a safe distance. These notices are done with the safety of our community at heart, it is their way of expressing their care for their people.

The traditional four day mourning period doesn’t always occur the way it used to, but it may be done at a family home site or sometimes it doesn’t happen at all.

How much of our traditions will experience long term effects of our social distancing?

I believe this is something to think about. What will the long term effects of this pandemic be for our community? I surely hope it’s minor and we can pick up where we left off. We may even have a greater appreciation for the ways we still have and practice them.

As a child I remember my dad talking about a time in our future when the people would stop praying and we would be poor, poor as in not having food or even firewood to burn for heat. I believe he told us that as a reminder of how important our ceremonies are and why we needed to participate.

I don’t know what the future holds for our tribe, but we can still perpetuate all of the teachings and ways of our tribe. Appreciate our elders and don’t be afraid to ask questions. It’s cold outside and we have snow on the ground. This is the best time to ask your questions, share stories and learn about our history.

Our museum is still closed to the public and I don’t know when we will open again, but that day is coming. I look forward to having guests, speakers and classes once again. In the mean time, I will be updating a few places in our gallery with different images and cases. The changes will be subtle in the best possible way.

Take of yourself, your family and check up on our elders!

IT’S ALMOST TAX TIME!

The tax season is just around the corner and although COVID-19 has removed our ability to complete tax returns face to face, the volunteers for the Meskwaki site will still be helping this year using a drop off service. The IRS is not accepting returns until February 12th so services will begin on Wednesday February 10th. There will only be two days of service provided per week this year but will try to accommodate others as much as possible. Appointment times will be Wednesday from 1pm – 8pm and Fridays from 9am – 4pm. Everyone will be expected to wear a mask for entry and follow all physical distancing guidelines.

Individuals can call the Tribal Center at 641.484.4678 to set up an appointment with the receptionist.

The location this year will be at the Tribal Center gym. Individuals can plan on bringing all necessary documents including: photo ID, social security cards for anyone on the return, all tax documents including but not limited to: W-2’s (work), 1099-MISC (typically per cap, minor’s trust payouts, or contract wages), W-2G (gambling winnings), statement from casino to offset winnings if player’s card used, any other tax documents, direct deposit information including name of bank, account type, routing and account number, and a copy of your 2019 tax return. We will also need to know if you and/or your dependents received both stimulus payments for 2020. This included the first payout: $1200 for adults and $600 for minors 0 – 16 and second payout $600 for adults and $600 for minor children. If for some reason you did not receive or get all that you were due for yourself or children, we can include on your 2020 return. We will also need a current phone number to contact you for any questions and/or pick up when they are ready. Ideally we will have them done the same day but with limited volunteers, this may push them back a couple days.

PHARMACY CORNER

The first Friday in February is designated as National Wear Red Day. National Wear Red Day recognizes heart disease as the #1 killer of women in the United States. Women are encouraged to take part in the observance by wearing an article of clothing or accessory that is red and to take care of their hearts by eating healthier, becoming active and talking to their doctor about their personal risk for heart disease.

Unfortunately, the pharmacy is not able to take back medications for disposal or destruction at this time. If you have any unwanted or unused medications in your home that you would like to dispose of follow these instructions. Mix the medications in used coffee grounds, dirt or kitty litter. Place the contents in a sealable container to prevent the medication from leaking or spilling out, then place the contents in the regular garbage. Be sure to remove the prescription label or blacken out any personal information on the label before you discard the prescription bottle in the garbage. SETTFIT CHALLENGE OFF TO A GREAT START

This year’s SettFit Challenge kicked off on January 18th with 148 people participating for prizes including gift cards, tee-shirts, gym equipment, swag and 12 grand prizes to be determined at the end of the 12 week challenge.

After only 12 days, the challengers have traveled over 16,624 miles together and completed 975 check-in activities.

It’s been fun watching everyone step up their workouts and eating healthy. If you didn’t join this challenge, consider joining at the midway point (March 1st), you won’t be in the running for the grand prizes, but it’s fun working together and there are many other prizes along the way!

During our first half of this challenge, participants are learning about S.M.A.R.T. goals. Specific, Measurable, Attainable, Relevant, and Timely (S.M.A.R.T.) goals can provide focus and increase commitment to accomplishing goals.

To learn more or just watch the challenge as it progresses, consider joining the SettFit’s Facebook group. Find it on Facebook!
WHAT IS MENTAL HEALTH THERAPY? A LOOK INSIDE:

Often when people consider coming to get mental health support for the first time, it is accompanied by a feeling of anxiety or apprehension about what to expect. Going to the doctor to get a shot, or going to the dentist to get a cavity filled, these experiences are more universally understood: you know what to expect. For many of us, we may be approaching therapy for the first time in our adult lives, and wonder what it is going to be like. Many people are not certain. Will we just talk? Will they “hypnotize” me? Why not talk to a friend? What is the point of talking to a therapist anyway?

I want to address some of the common questions that we get asked as therapists, and take you “inside” a session to help to hopefully make the process seem a little less shrouded in mystery and a little bit more accessible.

Do I have to be “seriously disturbed” or be “really sick” in order to meet with a therapist?

No. While some people may present for “more serious” issues, many people present to therapy during changes in their lives, or if they notice that they are feeling more stressed out or worried than normal. Often, people come to therapy to work through transitions like a divorce, starting school or work again, addressing issues with work/life balance, or wanting to improve the quality of their relationships with others and/or themselves. It is true that many therapists have “specialties” or areas of particular interest to them, and we are lucky to have a diverse array of clinicians with varying skills and areas of expertise here at the clinic.

What actually happens during a therapy session?

Therapy can look differently depending on you and the provider that you are working with. That being said, often therapy takes the form of a conversation or a problem solving session. You talk about what is going on for you in your life: symptoms or issues you might be having, stressful events that have come up for you in your day to day life, etc. and you would together with your therapist to develop a plan. You will be invited to speak openly, and you won’t be criticized, interrupted, or judged when you speak. Your conversation will be kept in the strictest of confidentiality. This is a special, unique type of conversation in which you can say exactly what you feel—total honesty—without worrying that you’re going to hurt someone’s feelings, damage a relationship, or be penalized in any way. Anything you want—or need—to say is okay.

Will I have to talk about my childhood?

Many people come to therapy thinking that they will be asked to dig through old wounds from their past in order to “make progress” in treatment. What you talk about during a therapy session will largely depend on your unique situation and goals. And depending on your goals, you may not actually talk about your past that much. The focus of your therapy is as likely to be your present-day reality and the future that you wish to create. That being said, if you really do not want to discuss your childhood, the intensity of your desire not to talk about it might suggest that you should! When people have strong negative emotions—about their childhood or any other topic—it’s typically worth doing some excavating to figure out why that is. Whatever is causing them to feel such strong emotions about the past is more than likely impacting their present-day life in some way, too.

How long will I have to go to therapy?

This varies from person to person. I’ve had clients who booked one session, we worked out their issue(s), and they were all set.

Other clients have booked sessions with me over a period of several weeks or months, focusing on one issue, resolving that issue, then perhaps moving on to a different challenge. Then there are other clients who I’ve been working with for some time—they appreciate having a weekly, bi-weekly, or monthly “check-in.” They may share their feelings, sharpen their life skills as needed, or put to words some of the things that they have been struggling with.

Therapy is really about whatever a client needs—a one-time conversation, a temporary source of support during a life transition, or an ongoing experience to optimize health physically, mentally, emotionally and spiritually.

Why not just talk to a close family member or friend?

If you are blessed with caring, supportive family members and friends, by all means, share your feelings, goals, and dreams with those people. They are a big part of your support network, and their insights and encouragement can be very helpful. However, people who already know you might not always be completely objective when listening to you. This is why working with a therapist can be so valuable. It’s a unique opportunity to share everything you’re feeling, and everything you want to create, without anyone interrupting you, imposing his or her own anxieties onto the conversation, or telling you that you’re “wrong” or that you “can’t.”

A therapy session is a space where you don’t have to worry about hurting anyone else’s feelings—you can be totally honest. It also means you have the potential to solve problems faster and with greater success. In the long run, that’s better for you and everyone else involved in your life, too.

GIFT CARDS

Dear Dr. Per Cap:

I got a bunch of gift cards for Christmas. Some are for stores I don’t shop. What’s the best way to exchange them?

Signed,

Too Many Cards

Dear Too Many Cards,

With so many people social distancing and staying away from stores, purchases of gift cards were way up this past holiday. Plastic or electronic, many people are stuck with gift cards they won’t use.

Fortunately, there are options for unloading unwanted gift cards. A first step is to check out online gift card exchanges. Spoiler alert—there are a ton of them so do your homework.

Most exchanges are third party businesses that take a cut for connecting people looking to buy, trade, or sell gift cards. Pay close attention to fees and red tape. Some stores have kiosks where you can exchange gift cards too. Either way check reviews to make sure you’re dealing with a reputable exchange that doesn’t charge more than 15% of a card’s value to take it off your hands.

Also, steer clear of consumer-to-consumer platforms like eBay and Craigslist. Both are loaded with gift card listings where buyers and sellers can deal directly. However, you face a much bigger risk of fraud so I don’t recommend them.

Interestingly, many businesses count on their gift cards to be only partially used or not at all. In fact it’s estimated annually over $3 billion of unredeemed gift card balances end up being booked as revenue. This gives a whole new meaning to the term “double dipping.”

Don’t let that happen. If you find yourself with a small balance on a gift card, states such as Montana, California, Oregon, and Washington have “cash back” laws that require stores to pay a card holder for any balance under a certain amount, although it’s usually only between $5 and $10. But even if your state doesn’t have a cash back law it doesn’t hurt to ask a store for a gift card balance refund anyway. You might be pleasantly surprised.

Here’s another cool hack. Amazon lets customers use small balances on competitors’ gift cards to buy their gift cards. Since digital Amazon gift cards can be purchased in any amount, a few small gift balances applied to an Amazon account can up to a nice sum.

A final little known fact - some states will claim the balances of gift cards that have been lost or sitting around a few years. They might try to track down consumers or list the funds as unclaimed property. If you’re bored some evening check out https://www.classaction.org/gift-card-laws for an interactive map listing every state’s gift card fees and redemption laws.

Geez, I wonder if people that give gift cards realize how much of a hassle they can be. I think I’ll take up knitting and give socks next Christmas instead of gift cards.

ASK DR. PER CAP

Dear Too Many Cards,

If you are blessed with caring, supportive family members and friends, by all means, share your feelings, goals, and dreams with those people. They are a big part of your support network, and their insights and encouragement can be very helpful. However, people who already know you might not always be completely objective when listening to you. This is why working with a therapist can be so valuable. It’s a unique opportunity to share everything you’re feeling, and everything you want to create, without anyone interrupting you, imposing his or her own anxieties onto the conversation, or telling you that you’re “wrong” or that you “can’t.”

A therapy session is a space where you don’t have to worry about hurting anyone else’s feelings—you can be totally honest. It also means you have the potential to solve problems faster and with greater success. In the long run, that’s better for you and everyone else involved in your life, too.

GIFT CARDS

Dear Dr. Per Cap:

I got a bunch of gift cards for Christmas. Some are for stores I don’t shop. What’s the best way to exchange them?

Signed,

Too Many Cards

Dear Too Many Cards,

With so many people social distancing and staying away from stores, purchases of gift cards were way up this past holiday. Plastic or electronic, many people are stuck with gift cards they won’t use.

Fortunately, there are options for unloading unwanted gift cards. A first step is to check out online gift card exchanges. Spoiler alert—there are a ton of them so do your homework.

Most exchanges are third party businesses that take a cut for connecting people looking to buy, trade, or sell gift cards. Pay close attention to fees and red tape. Some stores have kiosks where you can exchange gift cards too. Either way check reviews to make sure you’re dealing with a reputable exchange that doesn’t charge more than 15% of a card’s value to take it off your hands.

Also, steer clear of consumer-to-consumer platforms like eBay and Craigslist. Both are loaded with gift card listings where buyers and sellers can deal directly. However, you face a much bigger risk of fraud so I don’t recommend them.

Interestingly, many businesses count on their gift cards to be only partially used or not at all. In fact it’s estimated annually over $3 billion of unredeemed gift card balances end up being booked as revenue. This gives a whole new meaning to the term “double dipping.”

Don’t let that happen. If you find yourself with a small balance on a gift card, states such as Montana, California, Oregon, and Washington have “cash back” laws that require stores to pay a card holder for any balance under a certain amount, although it’s usually only between $5 and $10. But even if your state doesn’t have a cash back law it doesn’t hurt to ask a store for a gift card balance refund anyway. You might be pleasantly surprised.

Here’s another cool hack. Amazon lets customers use small balances on competitors’ gift cards to buy their gift cards. Since digital Amazon gift cards can be purchased in any amount, a few small gift balances applied to an Amazon account can up to a nice sum.

A final little known fact - some states will claim the balances of gift cards that have been lost or sitting around a few years. They might try to track down consumers or list the funds as unclaimed property. If you’re bored some evening check out https://www.classaction.org/gift-card-laws for an interactive map listing every state’s gift card fees and redemption laws.

Geez, I wonder if people that give gift cards realize how much of a hassle they can be. I think I’ll take up knitting and give socks next Christmas instead of gift cards.

TEEN DATING VIOLENCE AWARENESS MONTH
For teens & young adults, dating relationships can be both exciting & confusing. What may start as teasing or harassing behavior in a relationship can set the stage for physical violence. Teens & young adults may have difficulty recognizing when things turn abusive. They’re ill-equipped to handle complex situations and confusing emotions. Physical, sexual, or emotional abuse in a dating relationship or with a former dating partner could be happening, but they don’t realize it. Learning the warning signs & developing relationship skills can help prevent or deter dating violence. THATSNOTCOOL.COM has relationship scenarios. www.coolnotcoolquiz.org/

The Father’s Hand by Rae Stonehouse
A child that’s been coddled, protected, and given everything he or she wants, develops a mentality of "I have the right" and will always put himself or herself first, ignoring efforts of parents, family, & friends. If we’re this protective parent, are we really showing love or helping to destroy our children? You can give your child their own room in a big house, good food, a computer, tablet, cell phone, and a big screen TV, but when you wash the floor or paint a wall, children need to experience that too. After eating, have them wash dishes with their brothers & sisters, let them fold laundry or cook with you, pull weeds, or mow the lawn. Do this because you love them & want them to understand certain things about life. Children need to learn & appreciate the effort it takes to do a job right. They need to experience the difficulties in life we must overcome to be successful and they must learn about failure to be able to succeed. Children must learn how to work and play with others and know that they will not always win, but they can always work harder to reach their goals. If they've done their best, then they can take pride in all the effort they put forth. Life is about giving and serving, and these qualities are taught in our homes.

HOW CAN WE SHOW OUR YOUNG PEOPLE THEY MATTER TO US? BE DEPENDABLE, LISTEN TO THEM, BELIEVE IN THEM, BE WARM, ENCOURAGE THEM, AND SPEND TIME WITH THEM.

HOW TO BUILD RELATIONSHIPS TODAY & IN ANY CRISIS:
1. If you connect with young people through technology, send a text, email, video, or note that says they matter to you personally and you are thinking about them during this crisis.
2. Ask how they spend their time at home during the crisis.
3. Tell young people you believe in them, know they will get through this difficult time, move on with learning & growing.
4. Proactively let them know they can come to you if they need to talk about a problem or how they are feeling about life.
5. Actively listen when they talk to you. Undivided attention & demonstrating interest in what they have to say is key.

Children of Alcoholics Week happens this month. Many people in or out of recovery struggle because of growing up with a parent who had or still has an active addiction. It continues to plague their abilities to live balanced, emotionally healthy lives. A child who grows up and their parent/caregiver drinks heavily and/or uses drugs is never their parent’s priority. They don’t have positivity or guidance to learn how to take care of themselves, build proper & healthy relationships, or get a strong emotional start in life. Adult children of alcoholics (ACOAs) tend to face many typical difficulties in adulthood. These underlying issues can make it harder to find peace and balance, and many ultimately turn to use and/or abuse substances as a means of handling those challenges. https://americanaddictioncenters.org/

Due to school closings and stay-at-home orders from the COVID-19 pandemic, children’s increased online presence puts them at greater risk of child exploitation. Parents, guardians, caregivers, and teachers take measures to protect children from being victims of online child predators. https://www.justice.gov/coronavirus/keeping-children-safe-online

MNPD UPDATE

Chief Jacob Molitor was recently selected to be the Chairman of the Board of Governors for the Small & Rural Law Enforcement Association. Similar to the International Association of Chief’s of Police, the organization is designed to bring a voice, perspectives, and advanced trainings to small, rural and tribal agencies.

Chief Jacob Molitor recently presented the FIRST EVER Officer of the Year Award in the MNPD’s 15-year history. Officer Lee Simcox was chosen for this prestigious award because Lee is a true team player. He is always willing to help his fellow officers through training, technology, covering shifts, working together on projects, etc. He has also had several great ideas that have helped improve the processes and service of the agency.

Lee is always there when people need him most. In April 2020, Lee was the first officer on scene of a medical call on the Meskwaki Settlement that resulted in Lee immediately applying a tourniquet to a community member. Due to his swift actions and application of his training, the community member survived. Lee was subsequently awarded with the Life Saving Award.

A photograph of Lee will be placed in the “this could be you!” frame next to the wooden plaque. We are thankful for your service Lee! Please join us in congratulating Lee on the Officer of the Year Award!
